

Sinclair Broadcasting's attempt to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election should be against the law.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, democracy fails. Instead of propaganda produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's unfair business practices demonstrate why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
